$500 REWARD: FOR WOMEN.

WHO CANNOT BE CURED.

Backed up by over a third of a century of remarkable and uniform cures, a record such as no other remedy for the diseases and weaknesses peculiar to women ever attests, the proprietors of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription now feel fully warranted in offering to pay $500 in legal money of the United States for any case of Leucorrhœa, Perimenstrual, Prolapse, or Falling of Womb which they can not cure. All they ask is a fair and reasonable trial of the merits of our cure.

Their financial responsibility is well known to every newspaper publisher and druggist in the United States, with most of whom they have done considerable for over a third of a century. From the fact that readily be made to show how utterly foolish it would be for them to make the above unprecedented offer, especially over the credit of any preparation especially designed for the cure of woman's peculiar ailments. This wonderful remedy, therefore, demands a reward of $500 for any one possessed of such remarkable curative properties, who would warrant its makers in publishing such a marvelous offer as is above mentioned.

"I want to tell you of the great improvement in my health since taking your Favorite Prescription," says Mrs. H. S. Jones, of Forest, N. C. "When I began to take it a week and had despaired of ever having any health again, I took up the daily dose of a great improvement before the first bottle was used. Was suffering with almost every pain and disease, and was compelled to take a week of ovarian, painful and oppressive periods and other symptoms of female disease. After taking six bottles of your Favorite Prescription, I am a new person. Can ride horseback and take all kinds of exercise, and not feel tired."

If you are led to believe in the perfect laxative try Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

I have had occasion to use your Black-Drught Stock and Poultry Medicine and am pleased to say that I never used anything for stock that gave half as good satisfaction. I highly recommend it to all users of stock.

J. B. BELSH, St. Louis, Mo.

Sick stock or poultry should not eat cheap stock food any more than sick persons should expect to be cured by food. When your stock and poultry are sick give them medicine. Don't stuff them with worthless stock feeds. Unload the bowels and air them out. The stock and poultry will be cured, if it is possible to cure it. Black-Drught Stock and Poultry Medicine unfolds the bowels and stirs up the torpid liver. It cures every malady of stock taken in time. Secure a 25-cent sample of Black-Drught Stock and Poultry Medicine. It will pay for itself ten times over. Horses won't better. Cows give more milk. Hogs gain flesh. And hens lay more eggs. It solves the problem of making as much blood, flesh and energy available out of the smallest amount of food consumed. Buy a can from your dealer.

MAKES IT WARM
Fitzpatrick, of the Jett-Wite
Jury, Leaves Home.

Lexington, Ky., July 6.—Unable to stand the accusation of having accepted a bride which has been continually put before him since the trial of Jett and Ward at Jackson, Burns Fitzpatrick, the man who caused a mistrial by holding out for acquittal against the other eleven, has left his home in Magoffin county and gone to some place unknown. This was made known here to-day by Edward Harding, of Magoffin county, who passed through here on his way to Ashland. He said:

"While I have nothing much to say about Breathitt, I can tell you that Burns Fitzpatrick has left his wife with him. The trouble with Fitzpatrick was that his neighbor gave him considerable 'rating' and openly accused him of accepting a bribe. Just before I left, his wife sent a letter telling her to go to him, but she would not say where he was. I don't think he will ever come back."

One Flag for One People. Never does the country's flag appear so resplendent, never does it appear so touchingly to every American heart, as on Independence Day. Rejoice that you are an American and a Kentuckian. The Nation owes much to Kentucky, and Kentucky much to the Nation. The blood of Kentucky has been freely poured out for the Republic, and many a star in the brilliant constellation adoring the National emblem is due to Kentucky's valor. The Republic has, however, returned a hundred-fold every service rendered by Kentucky and every other State to the National flag and Government.

It is proposed in New Jersey to make the State flag more conspicuous than heretofore on the Fourth of July. State pride is justifiable, but there is no particular reason to promote State love and State pride at any time except in the rivalry of good citizenship between State and State. The National holiday seems specially inappropriate for an appeal to sentiments purely of State patriotism. An occasional dose of Herbie will cleanse the bowels, regulate the liver and so establish a clear, healthy complexion. See at J. H. Williams.

An old maid stood on the steam-boat deck, when all but her had fled; and calmly faced a kissing bug that flew by overhead. The maid shrieked and the matrons swooned, and the men all swore again, but the old maid liked a hero stayed and whispered, "come again." There was a buzz—a thunder sound—the old maid—was she dead? Nay, still she stood and cried for more, but the kissing bug had fled.—Exchange.

Valuable Time Saved. Slight injuries often disable a man and cause several days' loss of time and when blood poison develops, sometimes result in the loss of a hand or limb. Chamberlain's Pain Balm is an antiseptic liniment. When applied to cuts, bruises and burns it causes them to heal quickly and without maturation, and prevents any danger of blood poison. For sale by all druggists.

The origin of this, which is going to the Kansas newspaper rounds, is unknown: "I am not much of a mathematician," said the cigarette, "but I can add to a man's nervous troubles, I can subtract from his physical energy, I can multiply his aches and pains, I can divide his mental powers, I can take interest from his work and distract his chances for success."

Many an excerpt from the country newspaper has found its way to the family Bible where it rests between the leaves, a token of some hallowed memory. Whoever heard of a metropolitan paper being close enough to the heart to enter its reading matter in this sacred receptacle? It is only the country paper that gets close to the heart throbs of the people.

Cholera Infantum. This has long been regarded as one of the most dangerous and fatal diseases to which infants are subject. It can be cured, however, when properly treated. All that is necessary is to give Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and castor oil, as directed with each bottle, and a cure is certain. For sale by all druggists.

In declaring that a newspaper is a "necessity" and not a "luxury," a learned Philadelphia judge said: "I keep me informed on every event of public interest and, in a manner furnishes the only common channel of communication between the people. It watches with care over the conduct of our public officers and the manner of the performance of their duties. It molds, if it does not form, public opinion upon public questions, and conserves the interests of citizens and public which it would be impossible to do in any other way. It educates, inspires patriotism, elevates and strengthens the love of home and country."

HIGH CLASS FEATURES

For the State Fair at Owensboro.

Executive Committee Makes More Contracts for This Big Public Enterprise.

The Executive Committee of the Kentucky State Fair Association which will hold its big Fair at Owensboro beginning September 21, has added some highly interesting free amusement features to its program, among them being Dr. Carver, the celebrated marksman; the eight wonderful horses which race at full speed without drivers; a race between a team driven by a bulldog and a team driven by a man; four automobile races, one of which will be for amateur enthusiasts of Owensboro only; a fine foot ball game and mule and harness races.

In addition to the $20,000 cash prizes for exhibits, there will be many prize silver cups offered by various Associations and individuals.

The contracts for the big buildings will be let within a week.

Catalogues or any information can be secured by addressing Secretary L. B. Shropshire, Room 25, Board of Trade Building, Louisville, Ky.

Repulsive Features.

Blackheads, pimples, greasy faces and muddy complexions, which are so common among women, especially girls at a certain age, destroying beauty, disfiguring and making repulsive, features which would otherwise appear attractive and refined, indicate that the liver is out of order. An occasional dose of Herbie will cleanse the bowels, regulate the liver and so establish a clear, healthy complexion. See at J. H. Williams.

Without the American flag there has not been a State to celebrate the day. It is Old Glory that has called every Commonwealth of the five and forty into being, and Old Glory is by all revered as America's symbol of life and freedom, her pledge of equality, her badge of brotherhood. The child learns to love it from his very cradle. Every day is for the American to patriot a Fourth of July. The more closely each State clings to the National flag the more heartily it cherishes the lessons of its trials and triumphs, the more heartily will it have reason to rejoice that it is a State of the most noble Republic that has ever blessed mankind.

The gallant pioneers of Kentucky carried the Stars and Stripes to victory into Canada, and won by unconquerable valor for that emblem of regenerated humanity a Northwestern empire, which is to day the strength and pride of the American Republic.

The Fourth of July is Kentucky's day because it is Old Glory's day, and Old Glory's day because it is the Nation's day. We love the flag because we are Kentuckians, and as Kentuckians we are Americans. That one emblem should absorb and burn out the civic life so that we will need no other flag.—Louisville Herald.

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in the country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy.

—often the result of kidney disease.

It kidney trouble is allowed to increase the vital organs will attack the vital organs or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

Bladder troubles most always result from the kidneys. See a doctor. A cure obtained quickly by a prompt visit to the kidneys. If you are feeling bad you can make no mistake by taking Dr. Kilkenny's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It corrects inability to hold urine and eliminates the frequent urination, the unbecoming necessity of being compelled to a Pullman, that should you sit here just now with me at the very front end of this roaring catastrophe of steel realize that it is hurling you into that bewildering yard at over one hundred feet a second, with a stored-up energy back to you equal to that of a shell from a 13 inch gun, to develop which energy requires only a misplaced swiftness, a careless signalman, a broken rail or axle, you would understand how sublime must be the faith of that quite man at the throttle, whose clean-cut profile you can just see silhouetted against the window of his cab, in the material, the men, and the management of that most wonderful of modern creations, a first-class trunk railroad.

The perfect faith of the engineer in the system was strikingly brought home on the return trip from Chicago. A delay in Cleveland had put the train twenty-five minutes late, and time was being made up with a powerful Prairie type six-coupled, ten-wheeled engine with 20728-inch cylinders and boiler to match, and the engineer congratulated us on the

THRILLING EXPERIENCE

Riding Eighty Miles an Hour in a Locomotive Through Black Darkness.

The exciting experience of riding in the cab of the twentieth Century Limited affords some interesting reading in the Transportation number of the Scientific American. A most thrilling part of the narrative describes the run from Utica to Syracuse. "We were a trifle late in starting, and the engineer explained that as it was election night, and he would have to run 'dead slow' through the crowded streets of Syracuse, he would do some fast running so as to have a few minutes in hand. Here then was the chance of a lifetime—a seat in the most powerful express engine in the world; heavy train of 900 tons to be held; an engineer vouches for by the conductor as 'nervy and fond of fast running'; a stretch of downgrade just a few miles ahead of a race-track; and a sight of impenetrable darkness to lead the train to the last touch of wildness to the trip. We gathered way quickly to a speed of a mile a minutes, and before one had got his nerves to the sticking point, the fireman shouted that we were on the downgrade. The acceleration was rapid, and our stopwatch timing (the fireman calling off the mileposts) soon showed that we were making eighty-three miles an hour. That six-mile run by night was certainly the most thrilling experience in high-speed travel of a lifetime. To the writer, who was not by any means a stranger to locomotive riding, the experience was simply terrific—impossible of adequate description to the traveler whose gauge of greater speed is the slightly increased swaying of a Pullman car. The sensations of such a ride strike at every avenue to the emotions; ear, eye and touch are violently assailed. For the ear there is a clang and clash and roar, making a din so loud that one has to shut into the ear to be heard; there is the concussion of the moving parts of the engine, the jangling of metal, the crashing impact of the driving wheels and trailors upon the track—while above all is the deep, sustained roar of the exhaust from the smokestack. For the sense of touch there is the amazingly rough riding of the engine which, compared with a nicely poised Pullman car, is as movement of a springless farm wagon to a rubber-tired carriage. The unevenness of the track, slight as it is, is but little absorbed by the stiff locomotive springs, and when the driving wheels and the massive reciprocating parts—side rods, connecting rods, crossheads, pistons, weightings tons in the aggregate—are threshing around or darting to and fro to the tune of over 300 revolutions a minute, the great mass of the engine vibrates and lurches and, until one feels that the only logical outcome would be for the structure to rend itself into a thousand fragments. Then, for the eye, there is the sense—at eighty miles an hour by night—of incredible speed. By day, objects approach slowly out of a far perspective; but by night they rush at you out of the near darkness in one mad whirl of ghostly shapes punctuated by horizontal, rock-like streaks of fire—the signals and station lights.

"To the novice, the most thrilling moments come with the headlong rush through a station yard, where the tall lights of a side-tracked freight train glare with their evil red eyes at you from a distance—surely they are on your own track—and you sweep down upon a mass of white lights, red lights, headlights, whirling hand lamps, dwarf signal lights below and arc lights above, with two or three switching locomotives to heighten the crowded effect! Clear track? Absurdly impossible! I tell you, gentle passenger lounging back there in the cushioned security and comfort of a Pullman, that should you sit here just now with me at the very front end of this roaring catastrophe of steel realize that it is hurling you into that bewildering yard at over one hundred feet a second, with a stored-up energy back to you equal to that of a shell from a 13 inch gun, to develop which energy requires only a misplaced swiftness, a careless signalman, a broken rail or axle, you would understand how sublime must be the faith of that quite man at the throttle, whose clean-cut profile you can just see silhouetted against the window of his cab, in the material, the men, and the management of that most wonderful of modern creations, a first-class trunk railroad.

Handel as a Child.

George Frederic Handel, the son of a Saxon barber and valet, was only five years old when his "fingers wood divine melodies" from the spinet, which a good natured aunt had snatched for him to play on. He was unconscious of the fact. They do not know why, how or when they run his hands over their heads. But they all do it just the same. Go into a court room or at any place where men congregate and where it is necessary for them to remove their hats and watch them. You will observe that every man will go through the same performance. It seems to be a perfectly natural thing for them to do. My own conclusion is that it is an evidence of vanity. A man wants his hair to be just so. Originally probably it was not a matter of tidiness. But it has grown into an article of vanity. The lawyer, for instance, will have his hair to have a tousled appearance. It gives him a studious appearance and leaves the impression that he has been struggling with the books. Whatever the reason, the habit is a curious one and one which seems to be deep rooted in the masculine nature.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

There is nothing cheaper than a smile nor anything that is more valuable according to the energy spent in producing it. A smile from husband to wife, or from wife to husband, from parent to child or child to parent, from friend to friend—a smile who can tell its worth? Both the giver and receiver are blessed thereby. This would indeed be a sad old world were it not for its smiles of approbation.

When Boys Wear Wigs.

George Frederic Handel, the son of a Saxon barber and valet, was only five years old when his "fingers wood divine melodies" from the spinet, which a good natured aunt had snatched for him to play on. A delay in Cleveland had put the train twenty-five minutes late, and time was being made up with a powerful Prairie type six-coupled, ten-wheeled engine with 20728-inch cylinders and boiler to match, and the engineer congratulated us on the fact that because of the delay we should see some fast running. We had just snatched the stop watch on a three-mile run at seventy-eight miles an hour, when "Red" shouted the fireman, and with brakes hard down, we pulled up a wayside station sign to stop for orders. As we were standing, the fireman's countenance showed his order, which read that from Sandusky to So-and-so the east-bound train was closed, and east-bound trains would use the west-bound track, No. 26 (our train) to have right-of-way over all trains.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

For State Senator.

We are authorized to announce HON. A. S. BENNETT as a candidate for State Senator from the Seventh Senatorial District, subject to the action of the Republican party.

We are authorized to announce D. BAKER RHODES as a candidate for State Senator from the Seventh Senatorial District, subject to the action of the Republican party.

HOW YOU CAN TELL.

You can, by examining the label on your paper, tell just how much you are indebted to us on your subscription account. When you find how much that is, won't you make our hearts glad by calling and settling same. It may be a small amount, but hundreds of small amounts will help us. Come early. "For we need the money, indeed we do."

The good old summer time is summing right along.

How about the pardoning business, J. C. W. B.? Still rushed, are you not?

Ringo's message to Ohio county Democrats: "Free Silver at 16 to 1 buts."

If criminals were given prompt and speedy trials mob violence would be unknown.

ORIENTAL war clouds still continue to gather in the minds of the newspaper correspondents.

OUTSIDE of Ohio county the glorious Fourth was generally observed over the entire country.

THE Louisville Herald is not yet quite the whole thing, but it's got to be a mighty big slice of it.

OHIO county reports its customary shooting this week. What are you doing up there, Judge Hargis?

A WHOLE week has now elapsed since Beckham gave out a fifth grade composition for his friends to apologize for.

WHEN the present Democratic State ticket pay up their expenses for two campaigns and two elections, they will have mighty little money to buy luxuries on their trip up Salt river.

IN the Democratic State Central Committee meeting at Frankfort last Friday, Ben D. Ringo asked for a message to bring the disaffected members of his party in Western Kentucky. He got it, but we dare say he did not deliver it.

DURING the school year which has just closed, sixty-two counties reported common school graduates. Fayette was first in point of numbers. Ohio county occupied no mean position in the column, and she's going to do far better next year.

NOTICE to Democratic criminals and convicts at Frankfort and Eddyville: Establish the fact that your victim was a "working Republican" and your pardon will be forth coming. Your votes are needed badly in the coming Gubernatorial election.

WE are in receipt of a statement of The Farmer's Bank, Milton, Ky., of which our former editor of THE REPUBLICAN, Lon Rogers, is cashier. The statement shows that the institute is in a healthful financial condition, and doing a thriving business. Success to you, Lon, in your new field.

JUDGE Hargis' latest move to prevent justice being meted out to his cohorts—Jett and White, the alleged assassins of Marcus—was the employment, by Hargis, of two of the leading lawyers of Cynthia, to assist in their defense. Are you interested, Judge? You insist that you are not.

JESSE BURTON, an inflexible country youth, was murdered by Marshal Bee Lingle, at Lexington, Hopkins county, last Saturday, in a most cold-blooded and brutal manner. Lingle was arrested and put in jail at Madisonville, but, to prevent his being lynched he was transferred to Henderson jail. Officers should be given ample protection, but they should not be allowed to conceal murder behind official position.

WE believe in economy in all things, but the extreme and scrupulously guarded economy that has been inaugurated, with reference to the public roads and bridges of the county, will, we think, prove, in the end, and within the course of a very few years to be the height of extravagance. Bridges are permitted to decay and wash away, roads without work and attention are falling below the standard that a county like Ohio should maintain. This order of things may continue for years and is most sure to continue through the present county administration, during which time the people generally may think that because a bond has been redeemed, they are enjoying an economical administration of affairs, but when the present regime is ended and an attempt is made to repair our roads and bridges to an up-to-date standard, they will then realize that extravagance of the rarest type has been practiced.

The increasing prevalence of mob violence is due directly and solely to the failure of our courts to inflict punishment on criminals. Almost every court here in Ohio county we see one or more instances of outraged decency. It has come to be almost a question of dollars and cents in the establishing of a man's guilt or innocence. Men of money and influence can commit crime with perfect impunity. Those who are charged with the administration of justice, are directly responsible for the violent outbursts of passion which manifest themselves in mobs. Circuit Court here in Ohio county is an old, old joke which is repeated time after time at a fearful cost to the tax-payers. Sooner or later public sentiment will stamp its disapproval on this empty show in no mistakable terms. No candidate for the General Assembly of Kentucky should receive a single vote in the coming election, who would not pledge himself to favor a law giving to men charged with crime prompt and speedy trials.

List of Candidates.

One good indication of the interest being displayed in the Republican camp is the large number of announcements of candidates for nomination. This is surely an indication that the Republicans feel sure of victory.

The following is a nearly complete list of the candidates announced:

and three little children narrowly escaped with their lives. All the household goods were consumed in the flames.

J. P. Sandefur, who had been confined to his bed at the home of Z. T. Iler with consumption, died Wednesday and was buried Thursday at Mt. Zion cemetery. He was a true Christian and loved by all that knew him. He is the last one of a large family, all the others having died of the same disease.

Who can tell what can be had for the small sum of sixty-five cents? A lady bought a bundle of our pound goods a few days since and made from it a dress for herself, and dressed for three children, three shirts for her husband and has a large assortment of useful goods left. Sixty-five cents gets such a bundle at Carson & Co's store.

Owing to the short time before going to press last week, that we received the report of the Beaver Dam Deposit Bank, we neglected to call attention to some through the local columns of our paper. This institution is one of the very best in the county and shows by its report that it is doing a first-class business. Examine the report in our last issue.

The Acton family, of the Sulphur Springs neighborhood, held family reunion at Mr. F. W. Acton's, Sunday, July 5. There were seventy-six persons present, fifty-eight of whom were his own family, eight children and thirty-four grandchildren, sons-in-law and daughters-in-law. All enjoyed the day very much and each one present will long have a tender remembrance of same.

At 9:15 o'clock Tuesday morning at her home in Hartford, Mrs. E. M. Woodward died of complication of troubles after a lingering illness of several days. Her remains were interred in the Patterson cemetery Tuesday afternoon. She was a devoted member of the Presbyterian Church and had always lived an upright Christian life. She leaves a young, grief-stricken husband and a host of friends and relatives to mourn her loss.

We learn that our fellow townsman, D. M. Hocker, has recently organized a bank at Birmingham, Marshall county, Ky., with a capital stock of $15,000, and that he was elected cashier of said bank, which will be open for business on or before October 1, 1903. He will probably move his family there. Mr. Hocker is a first-class business man and we predict for him a successful business career in his new field.

Mrs. Oscar Bishop, accompanied by her little son, John Hocker, returned yesterday to her home at Corbin, Ky., after a visit of four weeks to her parents and friends in Hartford and vicinity. Her husband, Capt. Oscar Bishop, who had also been visiting relatives and friends here, returned home on the 22nd ult. Capt. Bishop is cashier of a bank at Corbin and we are proud to learn that he is making quite a success, and that the bank is doing an excellent business. These are Ohio county people, and we are proud of them and wish them success.

SHOOTS ANOTHER MAN

Marshal Paris at Midnight Hour Encounters a Foe--Uses "Billy" and Revolver

Last Saturday night, between two and one o'clock, while returning from a picnic, near Horton, Fred Tatum fell to sleep driving in his buggy and his horse, unguided, came to Hartford and stopped on the street, at the pump, in front of Griffin's drug store. There undisturbed, young Tatum remained, perhaps, for several minutes, when Marshal Paris, for some reason being on the streets at this late hour, without any inquiry as to who it was or as to what his business might be, proceeded to drag Tatum from his buggy, as he claims, to arrest him. Tatum, thus awakened in a manner roughly as it was, proceeded to defend himself against what he claims, he thought, to be an assault by an unknown person with intent to rob him of about $200 which he had on his person, he kicked his assailant loose from him and attempted to escape, when Paris raised and caught his man, striking him several blows on the head with his "billy," inflicting three or four ugly wounds and rendered him for semi-unconscious. Tatum now discovered that he was up against it in real earnest, and possessing considerable physical strength, struck Paris with clinched fist which brought him to the ground, after which he jumped on Paris, with both feet and proceeded to give him some shoe heel in the ribs in return for "billy" on the head. Paris realizing that his man was getting in some telling blows, drew his revolver and shot him through the leg, inflicting a very painful and perhaps a serious wound.

At this juncture Paris quitted the scene and went to his home, and on his way, met Sheriff Keown and to him reported that he had shot another negro, but after further investigation discovered his mistake.

Tatum was carried to Dr. Morton's office where his wounds were treated and was later carried to his home three miles East of here. At last report he was getting along very well.

Each party claims that he did not know who the other was until the whole affair ended.
